Colorcon Ventures Invests in Intelligent Pharma Manufacturing System Provider Apprentice.io

From small and large molecules to cell and gene therapy, solid oral dosages to injectables and beyond, Apprentice leverages artificial intelligence and augmented reality to get medicine to patients faster.

HARLEYSVILLE, PA. January 20, 2022 – Colorcon Ventures, the corporate venture fund of Colorcon Inc., has invested in Apprentice.io, a leading provider of Intelligent Manufacturing Execution Systems (MES) designed specifically for the life sciences industry.

Apprentice offers a dynamic, end-to-end platform with a suite of software applications designed to streamline batch-based manufacturing and remote collaboration. Solutions include intelligent batch execution, augmented procedures and workflows, predictive resource management, and immersive training. The platform grows more intuitive over time, using artificial intelligence, machine learning and augmented reality to help organizations improve yield, quality, and speed to market.

Ali Rajabi-Siahboomi, Vice President and Chief Innovation Officer at Colorcon, said, “Our customers are striving for faster times to market, improved manufacturing consistency, as well as business continuity through times of crisis. During COVID, demand for Apprentice has accelerated with several leading pharmaceutical manufacturers, as design weaknesses in legacy manufacturing systems were exposed. Based on the positive outcomes seen by industry participants, we anticipate a broader global adoption of Apprentice’s solutions.”

Angelo Stracquatanio, Apprentice’s Founder and CEO, said, “We are excited to have Colorcon Ventures join us as a strategic investor on our mission to modernize pharmaceutical manufacturing and realize Pharma 4.0, with the objective of getting medicine to patients faster and safer. Colorcon’s global footprint and pharma relationships will be invaluable as we begin to expand our geographic reach.”

Colorcon Ventures joins a prominent list of investors who also participated in Apprentice’s recently announced Series C, including Alkeon Capital Management, Insight Partners, Pacific West Bank, Silverton Partners, GFR Fund, and The Venture Reality Fund.
